Agenda

- 1. What is Talent Mapping
- 2. Why is it important
- 3. How do you do Talent Mapping
  - a. Talent Review
  - b. Succession Planning
- 4. When do you do Talent Mapping

What is Talent Mapping

A process to identify and assess the performance and readiness of your current workforce against future development.

The goal is to identify your high -potential employees for future development based on your strategic priorities.

Why is Talent Mapping Important

Helps identify and align your high potential employees to your strategic goals

The How

By conducting a Talent Review and Succession Planning

TALENT REVIEW

High Potential

Has the ability, aspiration, engagement, & agility, to move into a role with more responsibility and/or leadership at a faster rate than others

SME/SPOK

(Subject Matter Expert)
(Single Point of Knowledge)
Person who would be difficult to replace because of their highly specialized knowledge and expertise

Valued Contributor

A strong contributor with limited runway in the organization. Might not aspire to move into role with increased responsibility. Not viewed as a High Potential or SME/SPOK

At Risk

Person doesn't meet the expectations in their current role. Should be transitioned out of considered for another more suitable role

Factor's for High Potential

ABILITY - Employee's knowledge, skills, and attitude. Includes technical, functional, emotional, and interpersonal skills

ENGAGEMENT - The degree to which an employee is emotionally connected and committed to the success of the team

ASPIRATION - Employee's desire to grow into more challenging roles and take on more responsibility and/or leadership.

LEARNING AGILITY - The pace which an employee is able to learn, analyze, and understand a situation or challenge, think broadly on it and work with others to solution it.

Performance does not equal Potential

(Although a High Potential employee must be a High Performer, High Performers are not always High Potential.)

High Performer	vs.	High Potential
Success in current and past roles		Has the ability, agility, engagement, and aspiration to take on greater responsibility and/or leadership
Great track record for delivering results and consistently delivers on objectives		Demonstrates consistent, broad, and strategic thinking
Strong skills and expertise in area of knowledge		Seeks out new assignments or challenges on their own
Strong contributor on key projects		Strong desire to try new or challenging things
		Adapts quickly and can read a situation and make judgements or decision or adjust course of action to avoid derailment
		Resilient and curious
		Succeeds in new, difficult situations, often with a high level of ambiguity

How to Assess a SME/SPOKs

- 1. Does the employee have unique and difficult to find skills or deep expertise and knowledge that is critical to the organization's success?
- 2. Is this employee recognized for a valued, unique, and expert skill?
- 3. Should this employee resign, would it be very difficult to find someone internally or externally with comparable skills, knowledge, and expertise?
